RESERVE OFFICERS IN CHARGE OF DRILL

New Officers Take Charge of Company.—Dance Planned for Thursday Evening Following Drill.

Under the careful direction of the local young men who just received their commissions in the national army at Fort Sheridan, the State Guard held their regular drill last evening at the armory with a full attendance. It was more than an ordinary drill because of the new officers who took charge of the work and the new officers who took charge of the work.

Lieutenant Dutcher had charge of the non-commissioned officers' school previous to the regular drill and spent the time in showing the men the manual of arms and the school of the soldier. Following the officers' school the company fell in and the setting up exercises were given then. The manual of arms was given then the men and after about one-half hour of hard work the men mastered it creditably. Marching formations were then executed with Lieutenant Dutcher and Second Lieutenant John Groat were careful watchers to all the movements of the company and made corrections whenever necessary. Lieutenants Dutcher and Groat had charge of the small squad of men who were in need of extra drill because of absences at previous drills. Most of the time was spent by the men in having the men execute the movements of the manual of arms.

By a unanimous vote of the members of the company, due to the fact that these same officers have offered their services to control the drills as many times as possible, it was decided to hold one more drill period this week on Thursday evening. The drill will start promptly at seven-thirty and will be followed by a dance.

As a large number of people will be glad of the opportunity of seeing the men drill, it is expected that there will be a large crowd present at the dance following the drill. A four-piece jazz orchestra will furnish the music for the occasion.

This evening the two high school voluntary military companies will drill with the newly commissioned officers in charge of the drill work. Due to the school ruling only one hour of drill can be given each week, but the officers promise to give them enough this evening from seven-thirty to eight-thirty to have them in good shape.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Christmas Dinner.—Christmas is near at hand and the Salvation Army are making arrangements to furnish baskets to every needy family in the city of Janesville.

During these days of many appeals for worthy and most essential purposes, we wish to call your attention to the ever-present and ever-pressing needs of our own community.

In the words of the Saviour, "Ye have the poor always with you" in times of peace or times of war, and it is in their interest we are making this appeal.

While our organization is doing its utmost in war work of various kinds, our general work and our winter relief work are still in need of your support and are entirely dependent on the generosity of the public.

When our collector comes to you, don't turn him away empty; if you have not money to give, you can give vegetables, meat, butter, canned goods, chickens, sugar or anything to make up a good, wholesome dinner. The "poor" will be the corners this time again, but don't wait for them, but give what you have to give early before the rush comes.

Com. J. H. Connor.

DRYS PROTEST OVER WETNESS OF CAPITAL

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.] Washington, Dec. 4.—How long will the District of Columbia have the privilege of being wet although dry? The District is not really wet. In fact, by law it is dry. But Baltimore is but an hour away, and the Maryland line is not more than five miles from the capital in some places. And, unlike other dry cities, the law is against the law to import liquor into the District.

This condition has excited the ire and jealousy of many of the states which are now deprived entirely of the opportunity of having whisky and beer shipped past their borders. Citizens of those states are bringing pressure to bear upon their congressmen to have the District of Columbia taken down to favor them. It is freely predicted that inside of two or three months—perhaps sooner—the District will be on the same footing as the States which are dry.

It is the Reed bone-dry law which prevents the importation of alcoholic liquors into the dry territory. Before this law was passed, the importation of various amounts, perhaps a quart, perhaps a gallon per month. But the Reed law says that no liquor shall be sent into states already dry.

Under the law, the law was passed the District of Columbia was not mentioned in the bill. Invariably the legal phraseology includes the states "and the District of Columbia," which is a thing into itself. But as said, this particular bill omitted mention of the District.

Various reasons have been assigned for this omission. The first has been that the members of the committee and senators did not wish to be deprived of "their liquor." Another reason given was that the foreign diplomats resident here should not be forced to go without the wines they have consumed, in many cases, since childhood.

Since prohibition went into effect in the District of Columbia, the trains and trolleys to Baltimore have increased tremendously, particularly in the neighborhood of 5 and 6 p. m. when the workers are thought and left to their own devices. The trolley lines have been hard put to it to handle the crowds, the members of which are armed with bags and boxes, so that many have been brought home from Baltimore.

As it now stands, it is as possible, when some trouble is taken, to get as much liquor in the District as it ever has.

The Anti-Saloon League holds a meeting here within a fortnight, and its members have already declared they will try to make the District dry by including it within the provisions of the Reed law. At the convention Senator Sheppard of Texas, author of the national prohibition amendment, which is now before the people of the country, will urge strict prohibition in the District. He is also the author of the law which shut the saloons here.

FAIL TO LOCATE ANY TRACE OF DR. MILLS

Hurry Call To Police Station Brightens Hopes, But No Trace of Body Was Found in Search.

Although searchers are still on the watch for any trace of the body of Dr. James Mills, who is thought to have died in the city, the hope of finding the body below the Court Street bridge on the morning of November 11, all efforts have been of no avail. Searching parties are still working dragging the river for the body.

A hurry call to the police department just before six o'clock Monday evening brightened the hopes of the searchers. A body was recovered that a white object, having the appearance of a body, was floating down the river and was in the past vicinity of the bridge. The police officers answered the call, taking their grappling hooks with them, and when they arrived at the bridge, the object was seen coming in the direction of the bridge.

The search for the body has received statewide publicity and it is known that a searcher from Milwaukee, who claims an excellent record for recovering remains lost in the various bodies of water, will soon set to work and attempt to recover the corpse.

FIREMAN SUSPENDED AS RESULT OF FIGHT

Joseph H. Milligan, Member of Fire Department, Suspended for Striking Patrick Gallagher.

Joseph H. Milligan, member of the fire department, who has been stationed at the west side station, has been indefinitely suspended by Chief H. C. Klein, as a result of his actions on Monday when he engaged in a fight with Patrick Gallagher, an other member of the force. The action was taken by the chief of the fire department following the discovery that Gallagher would lose his right eye.

During a heated argument over a trivial matter of closing one of the stall doors to keep the horses warm, Milligan struck Gallagher with the top of his wheel, cutting his eye to the extent that it is now necessary to remove the eye.

Chief H. C. Klein has filed a notice with Mayor Fathus announcing the suspension of Milligan for an indefinite time and it is now up to the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners to decide the fate of the fireman. In a statement this morning Mayor Fathus stated that he would call a meeting of the board immediately to pass judgment on the case.

Chief Klein is said to favor the removal of Milligan from the force of the fire department, but the action to be taken will rest with the board when it convenes.

At the same time that the Fire and Police Commissioners are considering the suspension of Milligan, the board is also planning for the holding of examinations for men to fill vacant places on the police force, as well as on the fire department force.

FIRST AID CLASSES WILL BE ORGANIZED

First Aid Class Tomorrow Evening. All who wish to become members of a First Aid Class are asked to meet at the city hall tomorrow (Wednesday evening) at 7:30 o'clock.

Last year there were three classes held in first aid work—one in the afternoon and two in the evening—taking in all a membership of from sixty to seventy people. After the lessons an examination was held and diplomas given for proficiency in the work. There has been a call this season for additional classes in the evening, especially for employed girls who have expressed a wish to take up this work. It is hoped that a membership for two classes can be listed, where arrangements will be completed for a physician to give the lessons along the lines laid down in the textbook of the organization. The thought is that if suitable interest is shown, that classes in "Home Care of the Sick" and dentistry will be formed later on.

He and Fred Cooper were in the wood and both spotted a buck which Ludtke shot and wounded. Cooper also fired and the shot grazed the head near the eye. Edgerton News

Edgerton, Dec. 4th.—Some over $300 was taken in last evening at the dance, given under the auspices of the Federation of Women's Clubs of the city. The proceeds of last evening will be devoted to Christmas cheer for the soldiers and sailors who are serving their country from this vicinity. An hour's program was given for the benefit of those who purchased tickets and did not care to dance. Following is the program rendered: Solo. Miss Kimball Cello Solo. Miss Billabury Violin Duet. Nearly $600.00 have been taken in, in the two benefit dances, given for our soldier boys, and the money will be devoted to their needs. The Thompson orchestra of Madison, furnished the music last evening in a most able manner, and were liberal with encores. Every one had a good time and it is probable that more entertainments of this character will be given in the near future.

You Forget You Are In a Store

THE Columbia way of demonstrating a Grafonola is first to make you feel at home.

When you go into a place where Columbia Grafonolas are sold, the dealer knows exactly what you want. He knows that you came to hear music and he is glad you came.

You can hear all the music you want. You can select any records you wish to hear and as many as you wish to hear, and he will play them for you or let you play them.

There is no "hands-off-the-instrument" atmosphere. Walk up to the Columbia Grafonola and get fully acquainted with its mechanism.

The better you know the Columbia Grafonola and the more you compare it with other phonographs, the more the Columbia Grafonola will attract you.

Sometimes it happens that a customer, not quite ready to decide, would like to hear the Columbia Grafonola in his own home for a few days. This is entirely possible. You may have the instrument you like sent to your home on trial.

When you have decided to buy it, you pay for it on the most convenient terms.

Columbia Grafonolas are made in a large number of models, with the widest range of prices in the phonograph field.

These pictures afford some idea of the intensity of the British shell fire on the western front. The lower photo helps explain why the pursuit of the retreating Germans in Flanders is so slow. THEATRE PROCEEDS
TO THE RED CROSS

Local Theaters Will Co-operate with President Wilson in Giving Performances for the Red Cross.

In compliance with a request of President Wilson the theaters of this city have offered receipts from a benefit performance to be given on Friday, December 7th, to the National Red Cross Association. Half of the proceeds are to be returned to the local chapter of the Red Cross where there is one, and some Janesville theaters have already, in response to this national appeal, arranged for participation in this national affair. Messrs. Shiner and Zaluski of the Apollo Theater will have a special matinee at 4:15 p. m. Friday the 7th, the entire proceeds from which will be devoted to the Red Cross. The splendid bill has been looked for this occasion which consists of the following:

"Nine Little Rehearsers," "The Rocking Tree," "Rose and Rosebud," and some other acts, but the above includes some sixteen people and will be not only interesting as a performance but will draw a good attendance because of the object for which the receipts are to be used. An admission for this particular performance will be 25c and those who purchase tickets will do so with the full thought that they are assisting one of the worthy causes of the war.

At the Apollo of the Beverly Theater has arranged for a matinee and the Beverly will devote the proceeds from the matinee and they have for their program for that day the "Sunset Girl" with Victor Varconi in the star role. This is a Paramount picture and will be a delightful performance. Mr. Louthain of the Majestic Theater has arranged also for a matinee performance and they will display that day the splendid picture, "The Rainbow Girl." The proceeds, of course, will go to the Red Cross fund, and as stated before, both the Apollo and the Majestic receipts are divided fifty-fifty with the local chapter.

President F. F. Worthington of the local chapter of the Red Cross said: "After listening to Henry P. Davidson, chairman of the American Red Cross War Council, together with Henry White, editor of the Worcester (Kansas) Beacon, and the wonderful work they are doing, I am more convinced than ever that it deserves the unqualified support of every American citizen. Your patronage to the benefit performance Friday will indicate your desire to further assist in the war work which means everything for the soldiers and to the war-stricken areas of Europe."

Knowledge of French to Aid Business Employees After War

Knowledge of French will be more than ever a profitable accomplishment after the war. Nearly every large business will have closer relations with European connections and communication among citizens will be closer and more frequent. All young people in business who are able to speak French will therefore have a decided advantage when promotions and advancements are considered.

A number of large corporations especially large New York banks, have been for some time conducting regular classes in foreign languages. Conversational French in all such instances takes the lead. Newspapers now conducting a distribution of the Soldiers-Sailors Diary and Dictionary have been pleased by the enthusiasm with which civilians as well as those in the military service seized upon the book. The new and clear Sound-Spelling Method of this book, a handsomely bound textile leather volume of pocket size, makes it especially popular.

Distribution in this city of the Soldiers-Sailors Diary and English-French Dictionary is being conducted exclusively by this newspaper. A coupon plan makes it easy for every reader to obtain the book as explained elsewhere in this paper.

FASHION HINT

Though good taste is not often found with lavishness of trimming, it is possible to have them together. That is amply proven in this suit. The unique design of the embroidered trimming adds a note of distinction to this model that makes it one of the season's favorite fashions. The suit is of green broadcloth, embroidered in gray wool. The ample collar, the cuffs and the wide band around the bottom of the coat are of chinchilla squirrel fur.

Philadelphia, Dec. 4.—Philadelphia's experiment of giving free Sunday afternoon concerts in halls hung with beautiful paintings and holding world-famous statues has met with success. More than a thousand persons have crowded the galleries of the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts at each of the concerts given thus far. In planning the music for the people on Sunday and to give music in "sympathetic surroundings."

Although hundreds of seats are provided a complete informality reigns at the concerts. Those so moved

Ancient Quaker "blue laws" keep Philadelphia closed on Sunday. It is, however, permissible to give entertainments where no admission fee is charged. PETEY DINK—BUT PETEY HAD PLANS OF HIS OWN.

King of the Khyber Rifles

A Romance of Adventure

By TALBOT MUNDY

(Copyright by Bobbs-Merrill Company)

CHAPTER XVII.

"You know where is Dar es Salaam?" asked Yasmin.

"East Africa," said King.

"And English warships watch the Persian gulf and all the seas from India to Aden?"

King nodded.

"Have the English any ships that dive under water, in these waters?"

"I think not. I'm not sure, but I think not."

"The grenades you have seen, and the rifles and cartridges were sent by the Germans to Dar es Salaam, to suppress a rising of African natives. Does it begin to grow clear to you, my friend?"

He smiled as well as nodded this time.

"Muhammad Anjum used to wait with a hundred women at a certain place on the seashore. What he found on the beach there he made the women carry on their heads to Khinjan. So they worked, he and the Germans, for I know not how long—with the English watching the seas as on land land wolves comb the valleys."

"What were the terms of the German bargain?" King asked her. "What stipulations did they make?"

"With the rifles? None! They were too wise. A jihad was decided on in Germany's good time; and when that time should come ten rifles in the 'Hills' and a thousand cartridges would mean not only a hundred dead Englishmen, but ten times that number badly engaged. Why bargain when there was no need? A rifle is what it is. The 'Hills' are the 'Hills'!"

"Tell me about your lamp oil, then," he said. "You burn enough oil in Khinjan caves to light Bombay! That does not come in by submarine. The slekar knows how much of everything goes up the Khyber. I have seen the printed lists myself—a few hundred cans of kerosene—a few score gallons of vegetable oil, and all bound for farther north. There isn't enough oil pressed among the 'Hills' to keep these caves going for a day. Where does it all come from?"

She laughed, as a mother laughs at a child's questions, finding delicious enjoyment in instructing him.

"There are three villages, not two days' march from Khabul, where men have lived for centuries by pressing oil for Khinjan caves," she said. "The Sleeper fetched his oil thence. The Sleeper left gold in here. Those who kept the Sleeper's secret paid for the oil in gold. No Afghan troubled why oil was needed, so long as gold paid for it. And I know where the Sleeper dug his gold!"

"They sat in silence for a long while after that, she looking at the table, with its ink and pens and paper, and he thinking, with hands clasped round one knee, for it is wiser to think than to talk, even when a woman is near who can read thoughts that are not guarded."

"Athelstan!" she said at last. "It sounds like a king's name! What was the Sleeper's name? Was there such a name in Rome?"

"No," he said.

"What does it mean?" she asked him.

"Slow of resolution!"

She clapped her hands.

"Another sign!" she laughed. "The gods love me! There always is a sign when I need one! Slow of resolution, art thou? I will speed thy resolution, well-beloved! You were quick to change from King of the Khyber Rifle regiment, to Kurram Khan. Change now into my warrior—my dear lord—my King again!"

She rose, with arms outstretched to him. All her dancer's art, her untamed poetry, her witchery, were expressed in a movement, her eyes melted as they met his. And since he stood up, too, for manner's sake, they were eye to eye again—almost lip to lip. Her sweet breath was in his nostrils. In another moment she was in his arms, clinging to him, kissing him. And if any man has felt on his lips the kiss of all the scented glamour of the East, let him tell what King's sensations were. Let Caesar, who was kissed by Cleopatra, come to life and talk of it!

King's arm is strong, and he did not stand like an idol. His head might swim, but she, too, tasted the delirium of human passion loosed and given for a mad, swift minute. If his heart swelled to bursting, so must hers have done.

"I have needed you!" she whispered. "I have been all alone! I have needed you!"

Then her lips sought his again, and neither spoke.

Neither knew how long it was before she began to understand that he, not she, was winning. The human answer to her appeal was full. He gave her all she asked of admiration, kiss for kiss. And then—her arms did not cling so tightly, although his strong right arm was like a stanchion. Because he knew that he, not she, was winning, he picked her up in his arms and kissed her as if she were a child. And then, because he knew he had won, he set her on her feet on the footstool of the throne, and even pulled her.

She felt the pity. As she tossed the hair back over her shoulder her eyes glowed with another meaning—dangerous—like a tiger's glare.

"You pity me? You think because I love you, you can feed my love on a plate to the Indian government? You think my love is a weapon to use against me? Your love for me may wait for a better time? You are not so wise as I thought you, Athelstan!"

But he knew he had won. His heart was singing down inside him as it had not sung since he left India behind. But he stood quite humbly before her, for had he not kissed her? He knew he had won. Yet if anyone had asked him how he knew that he had won, he never could have told.

"If you were to go back to India except as its conqueror, they would strip the buttons from your uniform and tear your medals off and shoot you in the back against a wall! My signature is known in India and I am known. What I write will be believed. Rewa Gunga shall take a letter. He shall take two—four—witnesses. He shall see them on their way and shall give them the letter when they reach the Khyber and shall send them into India with it. Have no fear! Bull with-a-beard shall not intercept them; as I have intercepted his men. When Rewa Gunga shall return and tell me he saw my letter on its way down the Khyber, then we shall talk again—you and I! Come!"

She took his arm, as if her threats had been curses. Triumph shone from her eyes. She tossed her brave curls and laughed at him, only encouraged to greater daring by his attitude, and by the time they reached the ebony table and she had taken the pen and dipped it in the ink, she was chuckling to herself as if the one good joke had grown into a hundred.

She wrote in Urdu, with an easy flowing hand, and in two minutes she had thrown sand on the letter and had given it to King to read. It was not like a woman's letter. It did not waste a word.

Your Captain King has been too much trouble. He has taken money from the Germans. He adopted native dress. He called himself Kurram Khan. He stole his own brother at night in the Khyber pass. These men will say that he carried the head to Khinjan, and their word is true, for I, Yasmin, saw. He used the head for a passport, to obtain admittance. He proclaimed a jihad! He urged invasion of India! We held up his brother's head before five thousand men and boasted of the murder. The next you shall hear of your Captain King of the Khyber Rifles, he will be leading a jihad into India. You would have better trusted me.

YASMIN.

He read it and passed it back to her. "They will not disbelieve me," she said, triumphant as the very devil over a braggered soul all hot. "They will be sure you are mad, and they will believe the witnesses!"

"Rewa Gunga shall start with this today!" she said, with more amusement than malice. After that she was still for a moment, watching his eyes, at a loss to understand his carelessness. He seemed strangely unabashed. His folded arms were not defiant, but neither were they yielding.

"I love you, Athelstan!" she said.

"Do you love me?"

"I think you are very beautiful, princess!"

"Beautiful? I know I am beautiful. But is that all?"

"Clever!" he added.

She began to drum with the golden dagger hilt on the table, and to look dangerous, which is not to infer by any means that she looked less lovely.

"Do you love me?" she asked.

"Forgive me, princess, but you forget. I was born east of Mecca, but my folk were from the West. We are slower to love than some other nations. With us love is more often growth, less often surrender at first sight. I think you are wonderful!"

She nodded and tucked the sealed letter in her bosom.

"It shall go," she said darkly, "and another letter with it. They looted your brother's body. In his pocket they found the note you wrote him, and that you asked him to destroy! That will be evidence. That will convince! Come!"

He followed her through leather curtains again and down the dark passage.

DEARER VALERIE

"Do You Love Me?" She Asked.

sage into the outer chamber; and the illusion was of walking behind a golden-haired Madonna to some shrine of innocence. Her perfume was like incense; her manner perfect reverence. She passed into the cave where the two dead bodies lay like a high priestess performing a rite.

Walking to the bed, she stood for minutes, gazing at the Sleeper and his queen. And from the new angle from which King saw him the Sleeper's likeness to himself was actually startling. Startling—like an incantation, were Yasmin's words when at last she spoke.

"Muhammad Ned! He lied in his teeth! His sons have multiplied his lie, Siddhatha, whom men have called Gotama, the Buddha, was before Muhammad and he knew more! He told of the wheel of things, and there is a wheel! Yet, what knew the Buddha of the wheel? He who spoke of Dharma (the customs of the law) not knowing Dharma! This is true—of old there was a wish of the gods—of the old gods. And so these two were. There is a wish again now of the old gods. So, are we two not as they two were? It is the same wish, and lot! We are ready, this man and I. We will obey, ye gods—ye old gods!"

She raised her arms and, going closer to the bed, stood there in an attitude of mystic reverence, giving and receiving blessing.

"Dear gods!" she prayed. "Dear old gods—older than these 'Hills'—show me in a vision what their fault was—why these two were ended before the end!"

"I know all the other things ye have shown me. I know the world's silly greed has made it mad, and it must read itself, and this man and I shall reap where the nations sowed—if only we obey! Wherein, ye old dear gods, who love me, did these two disobey? I pray you, tell me in a vision!"

She shook her head and sighed. Sadness seemed to have crept over her, like a cold mist from the night. It was as if she could dimly see her plans foredoomed, and yet hoped on in spite of it. The fatalism that she scorned as Muhammad's lie held her in its grip, and her natural courage

Dinner Stories

"That story," said Representative Gardner at a Providence reception, apropos of a hyphenated explanation of a German sabotage plot, "is very fishy. It reminds me of Texas."

"Once, in Texas, I came upon a tall chimney, like a factory chimney, rising in an arid waste.

"Friend," I said to a native, "what is that chimney doing there?"

"That ain't no chimney," said the native. "It's a well."

"Yes," said he. "It's old Jeff Thatcher's well. A cyclone turned her upside down and inside out."

The burglar had entered the house as quietly as possible, but his shoes were not padded and they made some noise. He had just reached the door of the bedroom when he heard a noise moving in the bed, as if about to get up, and he paused. The sound

YOU MAY VIOLATE THE LAW?

The Federal War Tax Laws are so stupendous as to almost take the breath out of any person who contemplates them.

War Tax is not a sacrifice. It is in payment for value received—LIBERTY. Therefore, War Tax is Liberty Tax and strikes you favorably. The first big tax has been levied—three billion dollars must be collected this fiscal year. YOU—your business—your home—will pay. The War Tax is spread over most everything—that's fair. Liberty Tax you remember—every man, will "do his bit." No Business is too small.

But the Big Question Now Is — How? — What? — Where? What Must I Do?

The whole thing is so complicated that nobody but a trained attorney, who makes a business of handling matters pertaining to the Federal War Tax could explain it to the average citizen.

The Commerce Clearing House War Tax Guide which was arranged as a result of careful watchfulness on the part of the legal departments of the Commerce Clearing House is being distributed by the Daily Gazette.

The War Tax Law is a statute, and statutes are statutes—study, tedium, puzzle.

The law was carefully translated in plain United States English, by experts of the Commerce Clearing House who spent four months with the United States legislature while the laws were being prepared. The departments and rulings were analyzed, and explained, but this was not enough. Typical illustrations have been stated and answered in this book, that will occur to you in analyzing your tax puzzle. This simple illustrated book has defined the Federal Tax Laws, and without any knowledge of the law, this book may be read without weariness and with positive interest.

You must know about the tax law. Your business demands it. The nation demands it, and backs up this demand with a penalty.

The War Tax Guide explains the law in the business man's language, is compiled comprehensively, and with the careful indexing and charting makes it ready for quick reference.

It may save the cost (One Dollars) ($1.00) many times over in the assistance and help it will bring to you.

The Law goes into effect at once and ignorance of the law does not excuse you. The book is sent post-paid anywhere at $1.00. Clip the coupon and mail today.

of a woman's voice floated to his ears.

"If you don't take off your boots when you come into this house," it said, "there's going to be trouble, and a lot of it. Here it's been raining for three hours and you dare to tramp over my carpets with your muddy boots on. Go downstairs and take them off this minute."

He went downstairs without a word, but he didn't take off his boots. Instead, he went straight out into the night again, and the girl who was waiting for him saw a tear glisten in his eye.

"I can't rob that house," he said; "it reminds me of home."

"Jones, tell the class which is the best way to keep the March frosts from the plants."

"Plant them in April, sir," was the ready reply.

CLASSES WILL OPEN
BASKETBALL SEASON

High School Classes Meet and Organize for Basketball Season—Organize Debating Club.

The inter-class basketball season was officially opened yesterday afternoon when the interested boys in the four classes met and organized their teams to open the season. A surprising amount of spirit is being shown and from present indications the season will be one of the most successful in the school's history. A new plan is being tried out this year and that is scheduling the class games at the beginning of the season. It is thought that by doing this a greater amount of interest will be worked up for the interclass season, furthermore it is believed that a better team can be gotten to represent the school in this way as the coach will have a greater number of men to pick from. The four managers were called together today and a schedule for practicing worked out. As yet no definite date for the games has been set, although it has been rumored that the season will begin on next Tuesday afternoon and continue each successive afternoon to the end of the week, including Friday, when the class champion-faculty game will be staged.

To Begin Debating.
Much interest in debating is being shown on the part of both boys and girls this year and a meeting was called for this afternoon at which the subject was given free discussion. A challenge has been received by the Kenosha and Racine high schools for the local high to enter into a triangular league composed of Kenosha, Racine and Janesville. If enough interest is shown to warrant entering such league, this challenge will be accepted and an effort will start immediately. Then, too, Janesville will debate Beloit and Madison, their opponents in the well known Beloit, Janesville, Madison league.

Tener will soon be re-elected to the National League presidency.

MORRIS MULLER

Jimmy Sheekard, famous as an outfielder with the old Baltimore Orioles, Brooklyn Superbas and Chicago Cubs, was born thirty-eight years ago in Columbia, Pa. James has been out of the limelight for several years but the lure of the great game still holds him in its grasp. Jimmy has been playing ball more than twenty years, having commenced with Mallett, O., and Lancaster, Pa. semi-pro teams in 1896. His first league engagement was with Portsmouth, Va. in 1896, and the following season he played with Brockton, Mass., in the New England circuit. He got into the majors with Brooklyn in 1898, and spent the following season with the Baltimore Orioles, returning to Brooklyn in 1900.

After jumping back and forth between Baltimore and Brooklyn for some time, he settled down with the Boston club, then managed by Ned Hanlon. In 1906 he went to the Cubs and was the regular left fielder of the Chance machine during the season of his glory. Because Jim jumped from club to club and league to league with such agility, his birthday recalls to old time fans the horrors of the warfare which was waged in the early part of the century between the old circuit and Ban Johnson's new major league.

The Americans aided the Nationals with greater ruthlessness and less regard for contracts than the Feds have ever dreamed of displaying and at the beginning of the 1902 season the old circuit was deprived of a majority of its stars. It was then that jumping became popular pastime among players and Sheekard was the champion of them all. He jumped eight times, alternating between the Brooklyn Nationals and the Baltimore Americans. When the war clouds lifted Sheekard stuck to the National league. There have been a number of greater outfielders than James Jim Sheekard, but as a jumper he stands without a peer.

A service flag will fly in every park in the American league next season. If a suggestion made to B. B. Johnson, president of the league, is carried out, Johnson has taken the plan under consideration. It has been suggested the flags be uniform and show the total number of ball players who have left the league to join the forces of Uncle Sam. Some of the clubs may display a second service flag to show how many of their members have joined the army or navy. To date several ball players have been called to the colors; some have entered officer's reserve training camps, and others are expecting a call in the next drawing for the national army.

Penn's recent victory over Dartmouth was the first time a Red and Blue eleven humbled the Green in twenty years. On the Pacific coast the recent triumph of University of California over University of Washington was its first victory over the Seattle team in nine years. Coach Gilmore Dohle had charge of the Washington squad for ten years previous to taking up instruction at the United States military academy and did not lose a game with his powerful Washingtonians in ten years. When the Middle lost one of their opening games to West Virginia University early in the present season it was the first reverse ever suffered by a team under Dohle's tutelage.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 3, 1917.—With their ranks depleted by war, Badger track men answered Coach Tom Jones' call for practice this afternoon. Pepys at a Banquet.
People probably eat more judiciously today than they did when Samuel Pepys wrote the following account of his holiday menu:

"We had a fricassee of rabbits and chickens, a leg of mutton, boiled; three carps in a dish, a great dish of a side of lamb, a dish of roasted pigeons, a dish of four lobsters, three turts, a lamprey pie—a most rare pie—a dish of anchovies, good wine of several sorts and all things mighty noble, to my great content."

The striking thing about this feast, which was probably a typical one of its day (1663), is that it is composed almost entirely of meat and fish, relieved only by pastry and wine. If there were any vegetables in it Pepys did not consider it necessary to mention them, and it is possible that there were none. Potatoes were hardly known in England at that time, and many other vegetables now considered necessities were either not known or were rarely used.—San Francisco Bulletin.

AUSTRALIAN CAMEL CORPS IMPORTANT AID TO BRITISH IN VICTORIOUS CAMPAIGN AGAINST TURKS IN PALESTINE

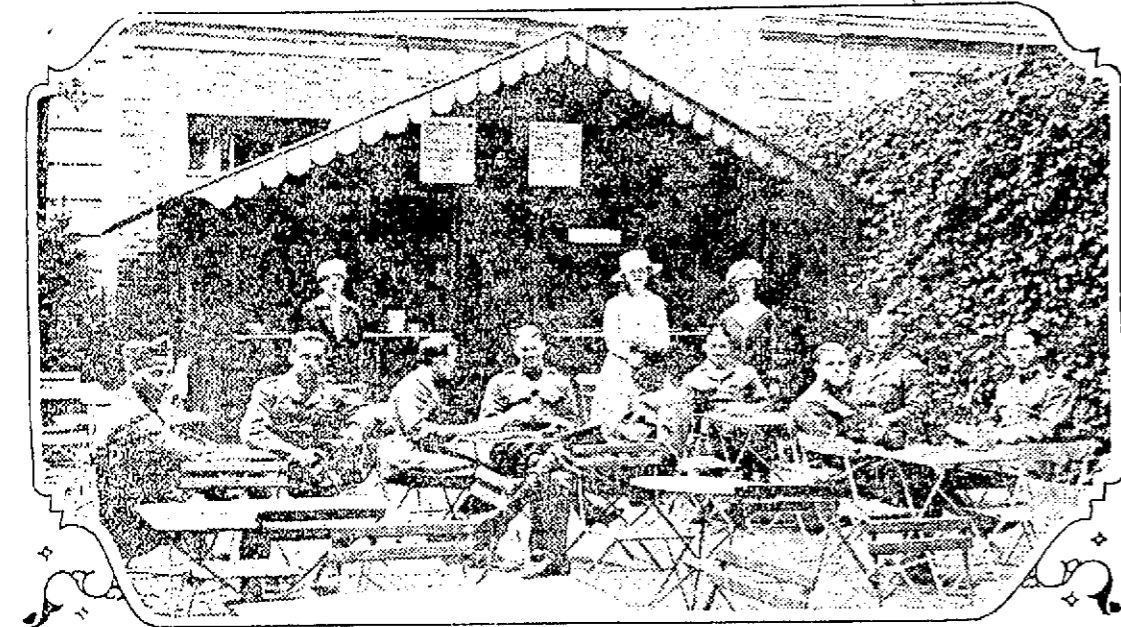

Members of the Australian camel corps and map showing the latest British advances in Palestine. Right, General E. H. Allenby.

An important factor in the victorious sweeps of the British through Palestine in their campaign against the Turks has been the Australian camel corps. The sandy stretches of desert have been one of the greatest obstacles the British have encountered and the Australians have been able to cross them with ease on their war-trained camels. The new front of the British forces advancing in Palestine is represented in the map by a line running from Gaza, the recently taken coast town, through without a struggle, as there are Tell Esch Sheriah to Khumilfeh. The latter point is eleven miles north of Gaza and thirty-three miles south of Jerusalem. The British strongly fortified. German army forces have now advanced more than thirty miles from the Egyptian border. The capture of Jerusalem by General E. H. Allenby is in command of the British will not be accomplished, of the British forces in Palestine.

"HOMES AWAY FROM HOME" FOR SOLDIERS IS WORK OF Y. M. C. A. WHOSE HUTS AND CANTEENS ARE MANY ON FIGHTING FRONT

The American army Y. M. C. A. canteen in Paris. Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., is at the extreme right. The Y. M. C. A. huts and canteens in France today reach from Paris to the fighting front and the work done to date has cost something like $1,850,000. A campaign has been started by the national war council of the Y. M. C. A. to raise $25,000,000 more for the work abroad. "Homes away from home" is the motto of the Red Triangle, and work of great value has been done in bringing comfort, happiness, strength and morality to the soldiers abroad as well as those in camp. Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Mrs. Vincent Astor have been serving in the Y. M. C. A. work in Paris.

Metchnikoff's Dream.

Dr. Elie Metchnikoff, the great Russian medical scientist, who for many years made his home in Paris, was the son of an officer of the Russian guard. He had the figure of a monk, an abundant, uncutivated beard, long hair and big, dreamy eyes. This savant had much of the simplicity of the visionary. Possessed by the problems of disease and sorrow, he was convinced that all would be for the best if man could recover the primitive purity of his organs. In this paradise which he would restore and that science might realize he held that man should never suffer and that at the end of approximately 100 years he would die with the same ease that one falls asleep in the evening. In the world that Dr. Metchnikoff has left he had explained that the body was a very imperfect machine and that there were 103 organs or remains of organs that were superfluous, useless and even dangerous.—Cri de Paris.

Measuring a Rainfall.

The depth of the sheet of water that would lie on level ground if none of the water were lost by evaporation or soaking into the soil represents the amount of rainfall of a given storm and is measured by a rain gauge. The standard rain gauge of the weather bureau consists of a funnel shaped receiver eight inches in diameter at the top, surmounted by a cylinder of one and one-half inches in height and eight inches in diameter. The funnel is placed in a cylindrical reservoir, 2.53 inches in diameter and twenty inches in height. The area of the cross section of the reservoir is to that of the funnel as one to ten, or one inch of rain falling in the funnel corresponds with ten inches of water in the gauge, being multiplied ten times for the convenience and accuracy of measurement.

MAKE STARCH FROM POTATOES

By P. G. HOLDEN.

SMALL or rough potatoes should not be thrown away or wasted, for they can easily be converted into potato starch. A complete and easy recipe for making potato starch is given in a bulletin entitled, "Potato Starch and Its Use in the Home," a copy of which can be obtained by addressing O. H. Benson, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. Potatoes also may be used in making yeast bread, the following recipe being sufficient for three loaves: One-half cup milk and water; 4 tablespoons sugar; 1 1/2 teaspoons salt; 4 cups boiled potatoes; 8 cups flour; 1/2 cake compressed yeast; 1/2 cup warm water. All the flour may be added in the first mixture, or a part may be reserved and added at the second kneading. The dough is soft after the second handling, but after baking produces a satisfactory loaf.

COST OF LIVING IS HIGHEST IN ITALY

(By Associated Press.)
Rome, Dec. 4.—Italy this winter has passed from the position of one of the cheapest to one of the dearest war countries as regards cost of living. Speculation in food and clothing and heating material is generally held responsible for the very high prices in many respects 50 per cent higher than in France. Woolen goods that last summer were sold at $2.50 to $4 a yard are now being reinvolved and sold in the same stores at $5 to $10 a yard. Women's coats that have been doubled or tripled in price, according to the whim of the storekeeper.
"If you don't buy now, you either won't get the chance at all later in the winter, else you will have to pay more money," purchasers are informed.
Second-hand furniture of the most ordinary quality, particularly beds, mattresses, carpets, chairs and tables, sells for the price of new furniture. Single woolen mattresses that last spring sold for $10 each this winter sell for $25. The cost of a cotton bed sheet is $3.
The cost of housekeeping has doubled since last winter. Eggs that formerly sold at 3 cents each now sell for 7 to 9 cents. Fresh vegetables, such as tomatoes, cucumbers, butter is 25 cents a pound. Sugar remains at 25 cents a pound, while coffee has gone to 80 cents a pound. Ham and bacon have disappeared entirely from the market. It is hard to get anything to buy. Oatmeal sells at 20 cents a pound.
Despite the fact that all of Italy is being deluged with food and clothing, the cost of living is still high. The cost of living in Italy is the highest in the world. The cost of living in Italy is the highest in the world. The cost of living in Italy is the highest in the world.
"It's war time" is the inevitable and final answer to all objections regarding high prices.
